

What People are saying...

“If you prefer a black and white world, this book is not for you. Cheri Cowell offers instead the adventure of living into God’s will for Technicolor people in the multi-colored landscape of real life for real people who have the courage to embrace mystery and let God be God.”

Dr. Paul W. Chilcote
Duke Divinity School

Author of Praying in the Wesleyan Spirit: 52 Prayers for Today

“So many earnest Christians have struggled to find the will of God in their lives. Cheri Cowell has given us readable, balanced, and Scripturally-based insights which will bless and guide any thoughtful reader.”

J. Ellsworth Kalas
President, Asbury Theological Seminary

Author of Longing to Pray: How the Psalms Teach us to Talk with God

“Cheri’s ideas, inspiring stories, and challenging questions are valuable resources for readers interested in making important life decisions. Do yourself a favor by preparing now for the time when you will be asking, “what does God want me to do?”

Burrell D. Dinkins, Th.D.
Professor of Pastoral Care and Counseling (Ret.)
Asbury Theological Seminary

Author of Narrative Pastoral Counseling

“Cheri Cowell writes with compassionate insight about the kinds of struggle every Christian knows too well—discerning God’s will. A biblically-sound, no nonsense approach to making God-centered life choices.”

James Robinson- Founder
Prodigal Song Ministries, www.prodigalsong.com
And author of Prodigal Song: a memoir

“The true power of this book comes from Cheri’s selfless transparency and her dogged persistence in finding answers in the Person and Word of God. Her struggles with identifying God’s plan will resonate with every honest seeker; and her ultimate answers are the only ones that can bring true contentment regardless of your current decision point. Read this book from cover to cover. Then, keep it handy. You’ll want to refer to Cheri’s candid reminders again and again.”

Julie-Allyson Ieron, conference speaker and author of 23 books, including Sisters in Faith Bible Study series and Praying Like Jesus, www.joymediaservices.com.

“As an advocate for breast cancer patients, I’ve talked with many who’ve struggled with questions of God’s will with life and death consequences. This book is a must read for not only the method it teaches, but the message of hope—positive hope—it delivers.”

Deb Haggerty, author, speaker, breast cancer survivor
www.PositiveHope.com